Working Notes

1995 AISB Workshop Series

Automated Reasoning: Bridging the Gap between Theory and Practice

University of Sheffield
April 4^{th}, 1995

Programme Chair: Andrew Ireland

Foreword

This is the second Automated Reasoning workshop held in association with AISB on the theme of "Bridging the Gap between Theory and Practice". The broad spectrum of interests reflected in this collection of abstracts demonstrates the important role such a workshop series plays in fostering links and facilitating cross-fertilization of ideas among researchers from various disciplines.

As Programme Chair I am indebted to my fellow members of the Organizing Committee for their support and guidance: Alan Bundy (Edinburgh), Barry Crabtree (BT Labs, Ipswich), Alan Frisch (Chair, York), Roger Jones (ICL, Wokingham), Antony Galton (Exeter). Thanks also go to Craig MacNish (York) who assisted with publicity.

We would like to thank AISB for sponsoring this workshop and for their organisational help, in particular Robert Gaizauskas. Finally we acknowledge the financial support of the Compulog Net.

Andrew Ireland
Programme Chair

Contents

Abstracts